As of October 9, 2022, there is no need to present a recovery or vaccination certificate or a negative COVID-19 test result in order to enter Israel.

Non-Israeli citizens who test positive for COVID-19 during their stay in Israel must comply with the isolation guidance for non-Israelis established by Israel's Ministry of Health. Up to date guidelines are at <https://corona.health.gov.il/en/>. As of October 15, 2022, the guidelines include:

- You are required to stay in isolation for at least 5 days (the day you test positive is the 1st day of isolation).
- A home antigen test must be taken on the 4th evening of isolation and the 5th evening of isolation.
- If the results of both home tests are negative, and no symptoms have appeared for 48 hours, you can leave the isolation site at the end of day 5.
- If the result of either test is positive, you are required to stay in isolation until the end of day 7 but are not required to take another test.
